Here is what the Cite tool in ERIC (same for all other EBSCO databases) looks like.

When you click on the Cite tool, you will be directed to this next window. From here, you have the option of choosing the Citation Format. APA is the standard format for education research, so you will always want to select APA as your citation format. Notice that this example DOES NOT INCLUDE a DOI number. Remember that for electronically retrieved articles (database articles), APA requires either the DOI of the article or the URL of the Journal’s homepage.
Here’s what the citation tool looks like in Dissertation Abstracts (ProQuest databases):

Here’s what it looks like in Google Scholar:
Preservice Music Teachers' Perceptions of Fieldwork Experiences in a Special Needs Classroom
Ryan M. Hourigan
Page 152 of 152-160